Re: H.B. 395

Dear Representatives Evans, Veit, and Sauls:

The Professional Certification Coalition (PCC) writes to share our views regarding H.B. 395. The PCC opposes the amendments to current law contained in H.B. 395 and seeks additions to the bill to improve Missouri's Clean Slate law. We urge that the bill incorporate these amendments to ensure protections for the public and for certification organizations that confer credentials conveying an individual's suitable knowledge, competence, and ethical conduct to participate in a profession.

The PCC is a nonprofit association formed to address legislation that affects professional certification programs, those who hold private certification credentials, and the many constituencies that rely on professional certification. The PCC's organizational members include non-governmental professional certification organizations, professional societies, and service providers. The PCC's members reflect a wide spectrum of professions, including health care, engineering, financial services, and information technology, among many others. Our founding organizations – the American Society of Association Executives (the leading organization for association management) and the Institute for Credentialing Excellence (the leading developer of accreditation standards for professional certification programs) – govern the PCC.

The PCC supports the goal of ensuring that individuals who have completed their sentences are not permanently stigmatized when seeking employment. But state licensing agencies and private certification organizations need access to the records of certain past criminal convictions in order to make well-informed decisions about conferring credentials that endorse the individual as trustworthy. The Clean Slate Act currently recognizes that expunged offenses should be disclosed when relevant to a court's consideration of a sentence for any subsequent offense. The PCC opposes H.B. 395's attempt to remove those provisions. In the same vein, the PCC respectfully urges that the legislature amend the Clean Slate Act to include carefully tailored exceptions for licensing agencies and certification organizations, similar to those provided to courts.

Some nonviolent and non-sex-offender crimes merit a continuing disqualification from certain professions, such as if a licensed financial advisor has embezzled from clients or a licensed practical nurse providing home health care services has engaged in identity theft. Further, many misdemeanor convictions result from plea bargains, even though the underlying offense would constitute a felony or a misdemeanor that carries a longer maximum sentence. A misdemeanor conviction for which the sentence has been served may still be relevant to an applicant's fitness to perform an occupation.

Licensing boards play a critical role in ensuring that the public can safely engage the services of a licensed professional. Licensing boards should not be prevented from having access to information that bears on an applicant's fitness to perform a profession, especially where that information has been established beyond a reasonable doubt, with due process to the applicant.

Private certification organizations also play an important role in conferring credentials on which the public relies. Certifications convey the certification organization's endorsement that the individual meets the competency, knowledge, and conduct standards required for the credential – an endorsement that may be misleading if the certification organization cannot even consider relevant past conduct.

To address these concerns, the PCC proposes that a new safe harbor provision be added as Section 610.140(15):

“Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, nothing in this chapter shall prevent a licensing authority or certification organization from accessing, or requiring an individual to disclose, the individual's expunged misdemeanor and felony conviction records in connection with a decision on the licensing or certification status of the individual. A licensing agency or certification organization may use such information solely in connection with that decision and may take an action based on an expunged conviction only if the underlying conduct resulting in the prior conviction would, if committed by a current licensee or certificant, be the basis for disciplinary action by the licensing authority or certification organization.”

The PCC has also asked for this provision to be added as an amendment to bills SB 36, SB 347, HB 352, SB 447, and SB 370.

Thank you for your consideration of this amendment. If you have any questions regarding this letter, please feel free to reach out to us using the contact information identified below.

Sincerely,

Craig Saperstein
