Re: HB 2271

Dear Representative Lewis:

The Professional Certification Coalition (PCC)<sup>1</sup> writes in support of HB 2271. This legislation is an important step in curbing the growing use of commercial cheating services that undermine the integrity of education, professional certification, and licensure systems. These services pose significant risks to consumers, employers, and the public by enabling individuals to obtain academic credit, certifications, or credentials without demonstrating the requisite knowledge or competencies.

Maintaining the integrity of assessments used to award academic credit, certifications, and professional licenses is essential to protecting the public. Commercial cheating services allow individuals to bypass evaluation requirements or fraudulently mask that the individual does not meet the standards. When individuals can submit work product that are not their own or cheat on examination, the reliability of credentials is diminished, reducing confidence that any credential holders meet established standards. Businesses that market these cheating services enable unqualified individuals to use credentials they have not properly earned to hold themselves out as qualified. In addition, the prevalence of such services has a corrosive effect on trust in credentials.

HB 2271 addresses modern educational and credentialing environments, including professional certification and licensure exams, while remaining narrowly focused on the businesses engaging in and marketing deceptive and exploitative practices. The bill targets deceptive and exploitative conduct while preserving the ability of learners to receive legitimate tutoring, research assistance, and other support expressly permitted by a sponsoring organization. This careful approach ensures that the bill protects assessment integrity without interfering with lawful educational services.

This legislation directly affects protections for the public. Commercial cheating services – some of which have been emboldened and have exploited generative AI technologies – need to be curbed. If commercial cheating services are allowed to continue operating without meaningful accountability, public trust in certified professionals and credentialing bodies will be significantly undermined, particularly in professions where certification signals competence, ethical practice, and readiness to serve the public.

Thank you for your consideration of the PCC’s support for HB 2271. Please feel free to contact us using the information below to discuss this further.

Sincerely,
